
SIZING UP THE CITY
Urban form and transport in New Zealand

Edited by Philippa Howden-Chapman, Keriata Stuart & Ralph Chapman

Sizing up the City: Urban form and transport in New Zealand collects and expands on papers presented at the New Zealand Centre for Sustainable Cities' 2009 national symposium on sustainable transport and our built environment.

Contributors explain how public and private transport form part of our culture, how they interact with urban centres, and how they affect our lives – our health and our social wellbeing. Research shows the challenge we face in making our transport networks resilient and sustainable, and the contributors to this book suggest how we might start that task.
