Seminar Series

Health and Climate Change: the Dutch experience

Wednesday, 8 July 2009, 5.30-7.00pm

5:30-6:15 Johan Mackenbach, Professor of Public Health, Erasmus University Rotterdam, the Netherlands. Professor Mackenbach has recently reviewed the impact of climate change on the health of the Dutch population, and will review current mitigation and adaptation efforts of the Dutch government.

6:15-6:30 Chris Cameron, Principal Advisor, Climate Change Office, Wellington City Council. The Council has been working closely with EECA and Greater Wellington Regional Council to enhance home insulation and heating programmes in the region. These types of programmes have been shown to have significant health and climate change benefits.

6:30-7:00pm Questions and discussion

Lecture Theatre 3, Old Government Buildings, Victoria University of Wellington, Pipitea Campus, Stout Street, Wellington
